A Glass Roadway

In the Yellowstone National Park along the base of the Obsidian Cliff, there is a glass road. The cliff through which the road was cut is of volcanic glass, jet black and quite opaque, with occasional streaks of red and yellow, and in the sunlight it gleams like a diamond.

Portland Cement

Portland Cement is the stone from the stone obtained on Portland Island, off the south coast of England. Stone from this island was used in building Whitehall, Westminster and Blackfriars Bridges in London in the reign of King James the First. The cement closely resembles what is often called Roman Cement, which was originally used by the Romans in their construction work, prior to, and after the Christian era. Portland Island, a narrow, low-lying, rocky island, known as Chesil Bank, which is formed of stone, gradually increasing in size from sand at the land end to boulders at the island.

Rubber Roads

It is possible that Rubber, the production of which is without a valid limiting factor, may become an important road material. Durable and silent roads under motor vehicles, which became more nearly silent as engine-making advances, and which no doubt, would rattle less, in middle age and in old age, on rubber roads than upon harder surfaces, without resiliency, might, conceivably, revolutionize condition of traffic.

A most enjoyable dance was held on Saturday the committee in charge were Hulton Fisher and Edmund Brothers, the orchestra was delighted to hear, Miss Nancy Brown played the piano, H. Fisher the banjo, the violins were Mr. Trono first and Knomad second, they were excellent and pleased the dancers in a marked degree.

During the fine weather last week field operations were progressing rapidly, some farmers are almost through seeding, very little coarse grain has been seeded, many farmers have no seed, due to crop failure and absence of Relief Measure, and their land will not be farmed this year. The average will be much less than 1922. Soil conditions are good, fields will be grown in a few days, summer-fall reported dry, Rye coming very slow, many are going in for raising corn and fodder, Grasshopper reports coming in daily, no sign of cut or wire worms in sight at the present time, farm help plentiful.

What is reported 3 and 4 inches through the ground, on many farms north of town, a fall of rain and snow occurred here in the early hours of Sunday assured enough moisture to give all seed a good start, a decidedly optimistic turn has been given to things because of the recent rain and promising condition.

Will this Policy Build a Nation

The following has been received by the Gosse-Miller Ltd., Vancouver:

Ottawa, Ont., April 1923

Gosse-Miller Ltd.,
Vancouver, B.C.

Under present regulations and conditions earned salmon shipped from British Columbia to Halifax via New York and Panama Canal would not be admitted to Halifax without payment of duty.

Jacques Bureau,
Minister of Customs.

Because of competition from Siberia, there is still today in the hands of British Columbia canneries several million dollars worth of salmon. This Siberian situation has played havoc with the B.C. salmon export trade and as a consequence, the business is not in very good condition.

Favorable offers were received from the Maritime Provinces and Quebec for several thousand cases, but as it is impossible to use the cheap Panama canal route, the business will be lost because the shipment will not stand rail freight charges. This means that in Canada today business must be done on a basis of rail freight or the business lost: The fish can rot. And that is exactly what is happening every day: the business is lost. Thousands of dollars daily are being lost to Canadian firms because of the fact that they cannot make use of the Panama Canal.

Any one who thinks that Canadian railways are benefiting because Canadians in eastern and western Canada are being prevented from doing business with each other via the Panama Canal, is deluding himself. The facts are: Canadian firms lose the business, Canadian railways lose the business and the goods are bought in the United States.

Just one more instance: The Premier Mine, in B.C., was considering purchasing from a Canadian firm in Owen Sound, twenty tons of grinding balls. Shipped via New York and the Panama, these goods could compete with American products, but after finding that because there was no Canadian customs officer at New York, the company would have to ship all-rail or, in the alternative, pay duty on Canadian goods, they found that it would be cheaper to buy American goods. This was done.

Nothing the Vancouver Sun can do or say will change the economic fact that for basic commodities the day of the transcontinental rail haul is over; the effect of the Panama Canal has been to divide the North American continent into an Eastern and Western transportation slope. In the United States full advantage is being taken of that fact and Americans on the Atlantic coast wishing to do business with Americans on the Pacific coast, do not hesitate to avail themselves of the most economic route. American railways, to make up for the loss in the transcontinental haul, have given attention to an intensive development of the short-haul traffic.

In Canada we still try to do business just as if the Panama Canal did not exist. Will such a policy build Canada into a nation?

Any individual or institution which would argue such a defense or any institutions which, for their own selfish ends, would strangle the progress of nine million Canadians, must be told to stand aside.

Parliament, without further delay, should place a customs agent at New York and thus remove a barrier whose effect is today preventing Canadians from trading with Canadians and is holding back the progress of CANADA.

Less Rain Fell This April Than Last; Good Sign

When Precipitation Is Heavy in the Spring, Crops Are Poor

There was less rain in the district this year than in corresponding period of time in 1922, but this is considered to be beneficial to the farmers, as the years in which the precipitation was heavy in April were poor crop years, according to E. G. Hartsborn, of the local branch of the Dominion meteorological bureau.

Mr. Hartsborn said yesterday, however, that last year was warmer than April 1923. During last month there was 1.23 inches of precipitation, while in the corresponding period of time in the preceding year there was 1.61 inches, according to the records.

Last month there was moisture during the first few days of the month, and then a prolonged dry spell, with the majority of the precipitation on April 29 and 30.

THE MOST DROUGHT RESISTANT GRASSES

Experimental Farm Note

In moist years there is plenty of feed on the average farm. In droughty ones fodder crops are short, and the farmer with much live stock is often at his wits' end to carry it through. He needs hay and pasture crops therefore, which will best stand the dry seasons.

Since 1918 the Beaverlodge Experimental Station has seeded from 120 up to 150 or more plots of grasses each year, both singly and in combination; with, as well as without nurse crops. The Station land is high and but moderately well adapted to hay production.

The grasses tested have been chiefly Brome, Western Rye, Timothy, Meadow Fescue and Kentucky Blue, although Red Top has also been employed in a limited way.

Results to date decidedly favor Brome and Western Rye as the two most drought resistant grasses. This is true even in the average season, while in the droughty summer of 1922 it was conspicuously emphasized, for Timothy, Meadow Fescue and Kentucky Blue were almost a complete failure.

Western Rye is especially adapted for hay. It seems to stand drought nearly as well as Brome, may be seeded either with or without a nurse crop and will continue to yield crops for three or four years, though the last two or three may be light. Rye Grass sod can be broken rather more easily than the sod of Brome or Timothy and unlike the two former, it has given us no trouble from volunteering.

When grown singly its hay is rather slithery to handle and if very mature is unpalatable. Cut well on the green side it makes good feed. It is subject to ergot, but we have seen little of it in the cultivated varieties.

Because of its bunch habit of growth, Western Rye is well adapted for growing in combination with alfalfa.

Brome is best adapted for pasture. As hay it is somewhat fluffy to handle, especially when the crop is short. It must be cured extra well or it will rust in the stack. The sod is tough to plough and the root stocks difficult to kill, though this can be accomplished by breaking in June or July, keeping under with cultivation, and back setting deeply in the fall. Clean plowing must be performed, however. Some farmers do not attempt to exterminate their Brome but plow the sod, remove a crop of grain and let the land revert to grass. The writer has never tried the plan but regards it as worthy of consideration in a climate where successful seeding down is somewhat of a problem.

Either Brome or Western Rye may be sown by mixing with grain in the drill box, though constant attention is called for to ensure a steady feed in correct proportions.

We have never grown these two grasses together but there would appear to be some points to commend the practice.

The seed of both grasses can be very successfully produced in the North.

In purchasing either, but particularly Brome, beware of Wild Oats.

He Was 8 Foot 2 and Tried to Escape Police

He was eight feet two inches tall, his name was A. Griffiths, and he was a former circus giant. He stole a circus horse in England and an automobile in Lethbridge and he was the earliest criminal the police ever had to trace. Now he has been sent back to England by Arnold P. George, of the department of immigration.

Griffiths told Mr. George at the board of inquiry in Lethbridge that he used to be a circus giant and after padding himself to live up to the advertisement that he weighed 1,000 pounds and was ten feet one, he thought he had done a day's work. So when they wouldn't pay him, he stole a horse, but was caught, and given an option, joined the army rather than go to jail. He came to Canada, stole an automobile, and was caught in Los Angeles.

"He couldn't escape, because he was so tall he had to bend to walk under the high doors of the Lethbridge jail," Mr. George said.

HERE AND THERE

Here and There

Nova Scotia has adopted the 'drive to the right' rule of the road, the bill providing the change having received the assent of the administrator of the province.

The year 1922 was a banner year for Montreal in the number and tonnage of ships which came to the port, a total of 6,983 ships of 13,085,260 tons arriving, as compared with 5,841 ships of 9,735,450 tons in 1921.

Canada led the world in 1922 in the export of raw furs to the United States. The total fur catch for that year was over 4,000,000 pelts, valued at $16,000,000. While the general price of furs shows a downward trend, the total catch shows a remarkable increase.

The addition of the 17,000-ton "Montclair" to the Canadian Pacific "Momo Class" fleet marks an important development. Not only is she the largest one-class-cable ship sailing to and from Canadian ports, but she is the largest in her class on the Atlantic. Her length is 613 feet and breadth 68 feet. Because of her size she will sail to and from Quebec.

The number of persons killed or injured while trespassing on railroad tracks were 30 per cent. less in 1922 than in the previous year. The average for fifteen years. The figures are 5,500 for nine months of 1922 compared with 10,750, the average for the previous year, according to an announcement made by the Safety Section of the American Railroad Association. This reduction in casualties is claimed to be due to the improved policies by the roads and to success of the Safety First movement.

Four of the Canadian Pacific "Empress" liners, the Britain, the France, the Scotland and the India, are loaded grain at Quebec, during the 1923 season, and new berths near the grain conveyors, at a cost of $500,000.

From September 1 to March 31 inclusive, the Canadian Pacific has transported to Vancouver 7,284 cars of grain, representing 1,282,200 bushels. Last year during the same period the movement amounted to 5,262 cars or 2,967,032 bushels. From the beginning of the crop season 1921, 9,739 cars of grain have been shipped to the United Kingdom, 2,882,200 to the Orient and 200,000 to South America. Last year during the same period export amounted to 9,000,000 bushels.

Approximately 8,000 tons of silver ore are waiting shipment from the Ashcroft, Yukon, mines. This tonnage represents the winter haul. Another 2,000 tons may be moved this summer, making the total silver shipments ten thousand tons for 1923. Such an output is worth about $2,000,000, high grade ore running from $250 to $300 per ton.

The greatest feat of steam transportation to my knowledge," said C. E. Stockell, of the Canadian Pacific Railway, recently, "was the movement of the grain crop of 1922." From Sept. 1 to Nov. 31, a period of 91 days, the Canadian Pacific Railway loaded and shipped an average of 1,200 cars per day. This required the dispatching of a train every 45 minutes during that entire period, carrying more than 1,000,000 bushels daily. This movement exceeded even that of the bumper crop year of 1915.

One of the most instances of the splendid work carried out at the Liverpool docks is afforded by the Canadian Pacific liner "Metagama." On a recent arrival at that port she started the discharge of her cargo and coaling at 6 o'clock in the morning. Allowing for the usual dinner hour, she took on board in her side bunkers 1,000 tons of coal, which was completed by 2:45 the same afternoon. At the same time she discharged 1,700 tons of cargo, the greater part of which consisted of package freight, or, plotting this operation by 7:15 the same evening.

Assumption of direct steamship service this spring between Montreal and the principal Norwegian ports, with the object of furthering the expansion of trade between Canada and Norway, is announced by the Canadian Pacific traffic agents for the Norwegian-American Line.

Gala Dinner To Queen and King in Italy

Victor Emmanuel, in Toast, Pays Tribute to British People

ROME—The official gala dinner at the Quirinal palace in honor of King George and Queen Mary was a scene of splendor. The dinner was laid in the banquet hall of the ancient papal palace. The fine old tapestries on the walls, the bright reflections in the immense glass chandeliers, the many uniforms and wonderful toilettes of beautiful women made a vivid impression.

King Victor Emmanuel, in offering a toast to His Royal Guest said that Queen Helena and himself regarded the visit of the British Sovereigns as an occasion for rejoicing on the part of the whole Italian people and new testimony of old friendship, consecrated at a decisive moment in history.

"I feel sure I am interpreting the feelings of my country," he exclaimed, "when I pay sincere tribute to the British people and express the hope that the two peoples will work together in the tasks that lie before them."

King George in replying said: "I rejoice that it was possible to pay a visit to your historic city and to express feelings of friendship and respect with which the Italian people are regarded in all parts of my Dominions. Memories of long years founded on a conception of liberty and justice, as well as a more recent comradeship in arms, bind the two nations by a tie that no shock can dissolve."

Everywhere throughout Rome the royal visitors were received with tremendous cheering and the visit of Premier Mussolini to the Quirinal for an audience with King George was the occasion of much enthusiasm on the part of the populace. Rome was illuminated and presented a carnival appearance.

Henry Ford will not appear before Special Banking Committee

Henry Ford will not appear before the special banking committee of the Canadian parliament and enlighten one country and all about the Credit System. Little may be lost. Mr. Ford is a wizard in some things, and although he does not look like banks there is more than a possibility he has no feasible scheme to replace them or improve greatly upon them.
